John C. Carroll has both legs amputated as result of accident—Remains of John Goode laid to rest at Bedford City—Tom Lawson Praises Honesty of Southerners.

Special to The Washington Herald.
Bedford, Va., July 16.—An attempt was made here to-day to revive the negro saloon conducted by "Doc" Fudge, but without success. A petition signed by hundreds of colored people asking that an ordinance be granted separating saloons for blacks and white was read in the city council.

C. E. Heinke, a local colored Democrat, in a speech said he was not in favor of saloons at all, but since their existence was to be sanctioned, he thought the separation of the races a matter of necessity. When whites and blacks got together in the same saloon, he said, trouble was sure to ensue. He said the whites are in favor of jim crow cars, restaurants, and hotels, and he thought it inconsistent to crowd the two races together in the most dangerous place in the world—the saloon.

NEW NORTH AND SOUTH ROAD

Virginia Air Line to Have Extension
Into North Carolina.

Corps of Surveyors Begin Work Locating the Route—New Field for Washington and Baltimore.

Special to The Washington Herald.
Arvonia, Va., July 16.—On Monday of this week a corps of surveyors began work locating the route of the new railway line which is to give Washington and Baltimore another direct connection with a portion of the South which has hitherto had no Northern outlet. The new railway line will begin at Stratmore, the new terminus of the Virginia Air Line Railroad, which was completed the first of last January and which has since been acquired by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company.

The new line will be chartered by Capt. T. O. Troy, who promoted and built the Virginia Air Line, and, according to the charter, it will extend from Stratmore, Va., to Milton, N. C., a distance of perhaps 200 miles.

The Virginia Air Line, which connects the James River division of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway with the main line of the Chesapeake and Ohio at Gordonsville, now gives all Central Virginia north of the James River a direct connection with Washington. This new extension, which is to pass through Arvonia, and perhaps Farmville, as well as Danville, and will open up a rich territory throughout South Central Virginia and connect with the Norfolk and Western at Farmville, and with the Virginia Railway and the Southern a few miles south of that town. The new line will probably also pass by or near old Hampden-Sydney College, south of Farmville.

It is thought here that the new company will arrange with the Chesapeake and Ohio people to use the tracks of the Buckingham branch of the Chesapeake and Ohio from Stratmore to Rosney, a distance of twenty miles. This line, if used, will be thoroughly rehabilitated, a bridge built across the James River at Stratmore, and all grades and curves will be eliminated. However, the route has not been fully determined, and it is possible that the road will be built up the rich State River Valley to Buckingham Court House, thence due south to the Appomattox River, which it will cross near Woods Mountain. This line would cross the Norfolk and Western Railway at or near Pamplin City, in Appomattox County, and the Virginia north from Madisonville, in Charlotte County.

This north and south line has many times been projected and proposed, but this is the first time that active work has begun upon locating the route. Capt. Troy expects to begin work upon the actual construction of the road as soon as the surveys have been completed.

Special to The Washington Herald.
Lynchburg, Va., July 16.—Mrs. Elizabeth Rucker Almond, aged sixty-five years, wife of Charles H. Almond, head of the C. H. Almond Dry Goods Company, of this city, died last night at Craig Springs, where she had been for three weeks. She had been in declining health for months. Mrs. Almond was a native of Bedford County, and was a member of the well-known Rucker family of that county. She married in 1896. She is survived, in addition to her husband, by eight children—W. J. Frank H., Charles H., Jr., Saunders M., Mrs. George A. Duiguid, Jr., Mrs. David E. Witt, Misses Nannie, May, and Ethel Almond, of Lynchburg. The remains will be brought here to-morrow afternoon for burial.

The board of aldermen at an adjourned meeting at noon today took up the common council ordinance providing for the issuance of 4 per cent bonds to the amount of $400,000, to be paid in thirty years, the proceeds of which are to be used for street and sewer improvements and for a new high school, city market, auditorium, and city hospital.

The electoral board of Campbell County met here to-day to hear the appeal of the patrons of the Tyreanna school against consolidation with a splendid high school, to which the children were to be conveyed, and the appeal was heard by the school board, which will be required to maintain the little one-room log school for another year. The school board will not appeal to the State board.

The break in the gravity water pipe line has been located, and the trouble is not so serious as it was feared. The water was turned back into the reservoirs this afternoon. The city was greatly alarmed over the necessity of using the James River water, much fear being felt as to typhoid fever. The trouble can be handled without further alarm.

Scores Persons Responsible for Arrest of Luce Makers.

The Amalgamated Luce Operatives of America complained to the immigration bureau that the former had been forced to this country in violation of the contract labor law. In addition, they charged that some of the women were of questionable character. As a result several of the workers were arrested and compelled to give bond to appear for hearing.

Secretary Nagel, in cancelling the warrants, said that "the conclusion has been reached by the bureau that there is no evidence to sustain the several charges, and that conclusion has been approved by me."

CITY FACING DEFICIT

Charleston, W. Va., May Go
Into Hands of Receiver.

DUE TO THE TOWN VOTING DRY

Unable to Meet Running Expenses, City Board of Affairs Votes to Cut Off Street Lights, Reduce Police Department One-half, and Otherwise Curtail—Action Denounced.

Charleston, W. Va., July 16.—Unable to meet running expenses, this city is facing the possible appointment of a receiver to handle its affairs. More than that, it is facing a crisis in temperance affairs, for it so happens that the difference between the running expenses and receipts amounts to the sum of $100,000, and the city from liquor licenses before run was downed.

For such a deficit the members of the city board of affairs are civilly and criminally liable, and in order to save themselves the members have voted to cut off the street lights after night, reduce the police department about half, and depopulate the departments considerably. No salary ordinance has been passed by the council since the new administration went into office May 1, and city employees have not been paid for nearly two months.

HELD FOR MOONSHINING.

Father and Son Enjoy Novel Experience
by Riding on Train.

Special to The Washington Herald.
Wheeling, W. Va., July 16.—When Christopher Brewer, aged seventy-six, and his son, Wesley Brewer, aged about forty, were brought to this city from the wilds of Wetzel County by United States marshals on the charge of moonshining, the latter saw and rode on a railroad train for the first time in his life, and the father for the second time. The two men were arraigned before United States Commissioner Boyd and held for the Federal grand jury.

Although they claim their product is moonshining, while under its influence William Barnett shot his brother, who may die of his wounds. The information leading to the arrest of the Brewers was furnished by Barnett, who is in jail at New Martinsville. The elder Brewer has been making the stuff for fifty years.

Brewer says their product is a mixture of rhuabarb and potatoes, and sometimes berries. In intoxication properties it is said to have champagne backed off the boards.

BANK STOCK ASSESSED.

Losses Sustained by Baltimore Institution Being Made Good.

Baltimore, July 16.—The Canton National Bank has assessed all shareholders 100 per cent on their holdings to make good the losses sustained by the embezzlement of the cashier of the bank, J. W. N. Geiger, who has since committed suicide. This action was taken with the consent of a majority of the stockholders. The loss sustained by the bank was $148,000.

At the time of the embezzlement the Controller of the Currency allowed the directors of the bank to become personally responsible for the amount of money defaulted, with the proviso that as soon as the exact amount should have been assessed the stockholders would make good.

Eight hundred and ninety-four shares of the stock out of a total of 1,000 voted to assess themselves. This will furnish the bank with an entirely new capital stock. The first assessment of 20 per cent must be paid on Thursday and the remaining 80 per cent on September 1.

Gen. Reyes Urged by Supporters to Run for the Presidency.

This movement has progressed so far as to receive open advocacy in the Reyes press of the country. It is claimed by the Reyes political leaders that his election to the vice presidency over E. Comon Corral, who is running on the Diaz ticket for a second term, is assured, and that the popular demonstration in his favor is so great all over the republic as to warrant the conclusion that he would defeat Diaz for the presidency should he consent to run for the higher office.

TAFT IS FIRM.

mission of certain classes of raw material he did so because he believed the Republican party was pledged to the principle of a downward tariff revision, and what he was advocating was in line with that pledge.

Official Statement.

The President's remarks, as set forth in the official statement from the White House, were in response to a speech by Representative Young, of Michigan, in opposition to the admission of iron ore free of duty, and a speech by Representative Mondell, of Wyoming, who opposed the free admission of coal or reciprocity with Canada in regard to coal, and also opposed free hides, each on the ground that the policy would injure the interests of Mr. Mondell's State.

The White House statement says that, following these remarks, a discussion was participated in by other Representatives, who urged that the doctrine of free raw materials was not a Republican doctrine, and the statement then continues:

"The President replied that he was not committed to the principle of free raw material, but that he was committed to the principle of a downward revision of the tariff, which he had promised, and that he was obliged to look at the matter, not from the standpoint of any particular district, but from the standpoint of the whole country, and also from the standpoint of responsibility for the entire Republican party."

"He said the question in each case was not a question of fact, to be determined by evidence, as to whether the present duty was needed for protection or whether the rate was excessive, so that a downward revision, or putting the article on the free list would not injure the industry."

Downward Revision.

"He repeated the platform of the Republican party, and said he had always understood that it meant a downward revision in many instances, though perhaps in some few instances an increase might be needed; that he reached this conclusion of the platform on what he understood to be the principle of protection and its justification—namely, that where an industry was protected by a duty equal to the difference between the cost of production abroad and the cost of production in this country, including a fair profit to the manufacturer, the energy and enterprise of American business men and capitalists, the effectiveness of American labor, and the ingenuity of American inventors, under the impulse of competition behind the tariff wall, would reduce the cost of production, and that with a reduction in the cost of production, the tariff rate would become unnecessarily high and ought to be reduced."

This was the normal operation of the tariff, he declared, by the operation of the protective system—not in every case, but as a general rule—that, of course, a revision of the tariff could not be perfect, must have defects and inequalities; but, as far as an industry was concerned, he called upon to act in connection with legislation, it would be thrown in the direction of performing the promises of the party as he understood them, and that if iron ore and oil and coal and hides did not need protection, and that the conditions were such as to enable the ore producers and the oil producers and the producers of hides to compete successfully, with the producers from abroad, then they did not need a duty and their articles should go on the free list."

Feels Country's Call.

It was a question of fact which he hoped to make up his mind with respect to on such evidence as was available to him in order to carry out what he understood to be the promises of the party to the whole people.

He said he felt that his position as the titular head of the Republican party and as President, with the whole people as his constituency, gave him a broader and broader point of view than that of a single member of Congress in respect to articles produced in his district.

He felt strongly the call of the country for a downward revision within the limitations of the protective principle, and he hoped to be able to respond to that call as he heard it, as well in the interest of the party as of the country.

Those Who Called.

The Republican Congressmen who called on the President to enlist his interest in protecting the products of their States in the pending tariff bill were Representatives Mondell, of Wyoming; Cowles and Grant, of North Carolina; Edwards and Langley, of Kentucky; Sturgis, Hubbard, Gaines, and Woodard, of West Virginia; Hamilton and Young, of Michigan; Tenser, Bates, and Barchfield, of Pennsylvania; Kemp, of Virginia; Hayes, of California; Sawyer, of New York; Johnson, of Ohio; Austin, of Tennessee, and Southwick, of New York.

Representative Richardson, of Alabama, was there to speak for the Southern Democratic protectionists. The principal speech was made by Representative Young, who pleaded against placing certain raw materials on the free list.
